Q & A with Investor Scott Liggett

Scott Liggett is a SVP Creative/Producer for AECG, an entertainment company based in Studio City. He has composed music for hundreds of hours of Television, Advertising and Film.

He was awarded an Emmy for his work with Robert Goulet for ESPN's NCAA Men's College Basketball Championship campaign.

For two consecutive years he was the music producer for (16) comedy spots for Priceline.com featuring William Shatner singing live in concert. For two years, Scott served as Music Director for the NFL Network's award-winning Super Bowl half-time commercials.

Scott co-composed and produced the music for the headline show "Centered In The Universe" which is currently playing at the Griffith Observatory's Samuel Ochin Planetarium.

Why did you invest in Till Death Do Us Part?

S: This musical is entertaining to a wide demographic, the topic will never get old and it's very cost-effective to put on in any theater. I really like the music and the story is smart.

I have great confidence in the creative and production team that's driving the ship.

I make a living writing and producing music in the entertainment industry and am exposed to many creative and successful projects... I trust my instincts on this investment.

What is your favorite part of Till Death Do Us Part?

S: I love the way all the theatrical and musical elements flow and segue and how the audience reacts. I also love the balance of humor and poignancy.

Why is theater important?

S: Live performance is in-the-moment. The relationship between the audience and those on stage creates an incredible dynamic. It's one of the oldest art forms and source of entertainment... It will never go away. 🎭
